

Emissions from informal sector- Brick kilns

OPTION-1 Environmental License

- An annual license to operate
- Report send about types of fuel and amount used by them or any mitigation measures
- Charge a high fee for dirty fuel users and lower fee for clean fuel users
- Anyone can report if brick makers are operating without license.

OPTION-1 Environmental License

1-Enforce (4)

depending on size of Kilns????

2-appropriate (3)

Does not require

3-predictability (5)

But need to increase manpower

OPTION-1 Environmental License

4-persisitence (4)

Will have a lasting effect an room for improvement

5-flexibility (4)

possible to change options

continue

6-economic efficiency (3)

costs are balanced

7-cost effectiveness (4)

High cost for manpower, but may be the only way

8-burden to EPA (4)

needs lot of manpower

9-legitimacy (4)

more people are given responsibility

continue

10-transparency (5)

open to public

11-equity (2)

more burden on environment agency

12-time scale for implementation (4) may take 1-2 years, cannot be done immediately

13-Time scale for effects (4)

no fine for restrictions

14-overall effectiveness (3)

out come may be achieved on a long run

Barriers

- Government support
- Financing
- Overlap
- Lobbying
- Public resistance
- Corruption
- Lack of man power
- Lack of trust

- OPTION-2 legal ban on dirty fuels
- 1-(3)needs more man power
- 2-(5)no resource required
- 3-(3)difficult to carry on a long term basis
- 4-(1) no room for improvement
- 5-(1)need lot of man power

6-(3) costs are balanced

7-(4) High cost for manpower, but in a long run it will be reduced

8-(3) needs lot of manpower

9-(4) more strict measures so it will be accepted

10-(1) open to public, since violators jailed

11-(3) centralized to enforcing authority

12-(4) may take 1-2 years, cannot be done immediately

13-

